QUESTION 1: Mr. Wes, it seems like the body of knowledge you've so far developed through tenacious research is far more advanced than what is taught to initiates in their various secret societies. A so-called professor of metaphysics has it all mixed up and yet believed strongly in their errors. Do you attest to this fact and can we be proud or confident we know more than they do??!

ANSWER: If a person is a professor of something, it means that even if they come up with new ideas, they are restricted to follow already established sciences as a basis for their research. If they don't, they can't become a professor. This means that it doesn't matter how "smart" such a person is; if he or she is stuck with including already false information in their theses, they won't reach very far. In order to explore the subject, we need to have a totally open mind and first question EVERYTHING we've learned previously—often including much of the sciences in general. Virtually all mainstream science is based on Matrix-thinking.

On the other hand, we who are in the alternative field of research do not know everything, either, and we never will because perspectives (individually AND collectively) are always changing. This means that how we interpret material and our experiences is constantly in a state of every growing expansion. Anyone who claims to have figured everything out and has all the answers is someone to be wary of. We know a lot about a few things and very little about a lot of things. We are constantly learning and coming upon new information that challenges what we think we know, nearly every day.

QUESTION 2: When I am in the presence of people who can read minds, why do I find myself vulnerable, and hence, insecure? Is it that mind reading is not a correct practice? Or do I open up, if I could control it, in spite of feeling unsafe?

Thoughts build up our reality. But how can I control my thoughts? It seems to be very difficult to mute the mind's chatter, whether it's positive or negative. What is your view on controlling one's own mind?

ANSWER: We believe that it has to do with trust. We humans have been betrayed so often that we are afraid to speak our minds and be authentic, thinking it somehow will come back at us negatively. If someone reads our minds, we are afraid that all our thoughts will be revealed and that we will be ridiculed or be considered abnormal. We are too afraid of what other people might think of us. In this Matrix, we should, in our opinion, be very careful with whom I open up in that sense, unless we know and trust that person very well.

The only way to really mute our minds in through meditation, where you let all your thoughts go. That will calm the mind chatter, and doing meditation regularly will eventually teach us to better control our thoughts. This means we become more in present time, and when we are in the present, we can also better control our thoughts.

Telepathy is about perceiving all things as being connected to an overall state of collective consciousness. We are simply connecting to that part of another person that is, in fact, part of us as well. Is it a correct practice? Yes, and it has been suggested that this is how MOST beings in our Universe communicate, in some form or another. As for controlling your own thoughts and how they affect your own experiences, in our opinion, this is a result and desired consequence of spiritual growth and a process that we are no where near achieving ourselves.

QUESTION 3: When I gave my first steps in my awakening process, I had a clear vision of a golden bird head in my room, like an Egyptian deity, very looked alike Horus if you google him. This was not a dream and I was with my eyes open, and it lasted almost one minute and then it vanished.

After you said that Ninurta and his brother look like this, does this mean I was visited by one of them, or what could it mean?

ANSWER: We have no way of knowing what that could mean. It could be a lingering effect of your dream state. It could be a subconscious thought projection. No, we highly doubt you were visited by these beings. These beings, AIF included, rarely interact with humans, if ever. They tend to manipulate humans through other humans, and their overall attitude about personal interactions is a "hands off" one. Ultimately, only you can determine what your vision meant. Visions are extremely personal and relevant only to the one having them, so it would be wrong to try to interpret your vision ourselves. Usually with time and reflection the meaning will come through.

QUESTION 4: According to ancient texts, shamanic lore, and Remote Viewers, due to Enki's BLA setup, our souls get split each time before we are sent to the next incarnation.

If we manage to exit the Matrix after death and escape, then we will continue our journey in the mental state and the memories of the "last incarnation", which is supposedly myself/yourself, etc. in the present time. Because each soul fire has their own Oversoul (the initial soul), won't these small fires want to reunite with their original co-pieces at some point, and won't this create an inconsistent state of consciousness for the "composite" soul, which [is] me escaping Matrix after death? Won't my current "composite" soul in this case feel itself like it's a "temporary personality"?

ANSWER: No, because each individual soul fire contains ALL the qualities of the entire soul. We are complete and whole as the composite of fires we are in this life. Any other fires that may have been part of our make-up before this life, and are now separated from that original composite, have gone elsewhere and incorporated into whatever new construct they find themselves in. When you scrape your knee and lose some of your skin, what happens to that lost skin? What happens to the place where the skin is missing? Do you think the lost skin misses being a part of the body? Will you be concerned to leave that skin behind in this matrix when you move on? No, of course not. This is not something we have to worry about, and when a similar question was presented in the past, the answer given was that things like this will be "taken care of". When we get out, any loose ends will be dealt with, and we do not know how that is done. The important thing is to get out, first and foremost.

QUESTION 5: You mentioned that Enki wants us as his children to come to him, and Marduk wants to show his father (Enki) that we humans are not worth Enki's attention, but then who, eventually, wants to invade Orion riding our avatars to overthrow Queen of Stars? Is it Enki (as army of Avatars) or Marduk (as 3D Cyborgs)? How are they going to do this if they are conflicting among themselves and don't seem to support each other's methods?

ANSWER: It certainly seems to us that it's Marduk with the plan to invade Orion. Barbara Marciniak's Pleiadians, who claim to work with En.ki, say that on the timeline we are now, we will, in the future, first invade the Pleiades as cyborgs. The Pleiades has been En.ki's domain since he was cast out of Orion. The Pleiadians say that they now live in a tyranny. So, it seems to us that Marduk, with our help, will invade his father, En.ki, in the future before he takes on Orion. We believe that once both En.ki and Marduk might have wanted to invade Orion, but En.ki backed off. If so, that would of course create a split between father and son. En.ki instead wants to prove to his brother, Ninurta/En.lil, and his mother that he can "evolve" mankind with his methods, making a statement that he should have been chosen for the task of creating the Namlu'u (primordial womankind) together with his mother from the beginning, rather than Ninurta, as we talked about in the video series, "The Orion Family Feud" Part 1-3.

QUESTION 6: You mentioned that there are two choices: We either follow Enki to Heaven or Marduk to Hell (Singularity), but the third option is to exit the Matrix. For those human souls who have only the former two choices, what might be their fate? Will they eventually cease to exist when their soul fires are depleted of energy in either case? Also, how can a soul be depleted of energy in the Singularity if it loses its ability to feel emotions and emit any sort of energy, due to cyborgs cannot feel, but still can host a human soul?

ANSWER: We don't know exactly what will happen to humans that stay here other than they will be trapped with no way out, after a certain point. Yes, it is likely that souls will eventually become completely depleted if they are cut off, which they will be. Thus, the AIF desperate plans to eventually break out and enter back into the KHAA (using humans to do this). We retain our connection to the KHAA, and this is where we receive our life force. Those of us who have managed to reconnect or strengthen that connection have unlimited "supply". If/when that connection gets cut off, or humans become so damaged that they lose their connection, humans will eventually become useless and no longer a sustainable and dependable source for the AIF. The AIF is shooting themselves in the foot, and they know this; but they're desperate. This system cannot continue as it is, or they risk running out of food. We are in the middle of the Singularity. Humans are being depleted of their soul energy right now because their connection is virtually nonexistent, and humans are feeding upon each other, unknowingly. This eventually will become a closed-loop system in which everyone who remains will cannibalize and be cannibalized of soul energy. Eventually, those who are left will be lost, unfortunately.

QUESTION 7: If I remember correctly, Wes you stated once in the Illuminati News website that you were raised a Scientologist. Have you watched the A&E cable TV series "Leah Remini: Scientology and the Aftermath"? What are your thoughts on the series? Is it what is known in CIA circles as "Controlled Opposition," much like David Icke, Alex Jones, and others who appear in mainstream media formats on speaking out? Ms. Remini seems to fit that bill. If so, why is Scientology being targeted? They've been so secretive for decades. Could you shed some light on this topic (or can you)?

ANSWER: Yes, I've watched quite a few of those episodes. In order not to draw too much attention to myself from Scientology, I don't want to say too much on the subject. If I'm targeted, my life will become miserable—it's not worth it. Remini and others have chosen to battle Scientology, and that's their choice. However, from all the episodes I've watched with Ms. Remini, I have not heard one single word for her that is not true. She is right on! She knows her stuff and is genuine. Scientology is in the stoplight thanks to the Internet. Defectors can now come out in public and tell the truth about Scientology.

QUESTION 8: I was previously obsessed about losing my spiritual abilities that I can use when I'm out of body (like creating instantly and teleporting). I am really afraid that I might manifest them out of existence by mistake. Now I'm no longer obsessed with compulsions, but I'm still afraid to some extent. Would you please clarify?

ANSWER: The short answer to this is that if you can manifest them out of existence, you can also manifest them into existence again, as well. Once you've learned the skill, you won't lose it. You cannot lose your spiritual abilities unless you create resistance to these abilities in some way, yourself. By focusing on this fear to such an extent, you will eventually create exactly what you are focusing on. Try to figure out where this fear is coming from, work on resolving it, and regaining your confidence.

QUESTION 9: If the concave Earth is true, what about all the Stories of foreign species living in the Inside Earth? All lies and disinformation? I know so many books, telling about the life in the inner Earth with a lot of Harmony, no need for money, etc... And it often sounded plausible. What are your thoughts about these Inside Earth Livings?

ANSWER: We are most probably going to write an article or make a video on the concave, flat, and round Earth in the nearby future that might shed some light on this. It's too much to go into here, but we included your question because we know that many people are wondering.

And yes, we conclude that these societies of inner Earth life exist, regardless of the shape of the Earth (there is an Inner Earth even if the world would be concave). However, we do not know how the civilizations existing inside the Earth operate. From what we know, any attempt to locate or infiltrate these societies are met with extreme disapproval from these civilizations, and the consequences are usually very bad for those who attempt to do so. They want to be left alone, and it is best that we respect that. Keep in mind that the AIF dwell within the Earth, as well, and we are wise to leave them alone, as well. There is no paradise for humans to be found inside the Earth, only trouble, from what we have learned.

QUESTION 10: Is there no kind of Reincarnation in the KHAA? If I want to Experience Physical Death and change the body and Environment I am currently in.. isn't it possible? Is there no place where you just exist as a living soul without a physical body ? Always having to have to wear a physical body Sounds so exhausting and ego-focused. I really liked the idea of the "Beyond", where there is only harmony, love, [and] no physical things ... like holidays for the Soul, where everyone is reminded that we belong together and life is only a game played by souls to make chosen experiences... Wasn't that the main Intention of the Queen? I hope you understand what I mean...

ANSWER: Reincarnation, as we know it, does not exist in the KHAA as far as our knowledge goes. This doesn't mean that physical bodies in the KHAA don't die, although there is no decay, like it is here. However, there is no amnesia and no forced recycling process in the KHAA. If a being loses his or her body, they take a new one with their memories intact as soon as a new body is available. It's like replacing a broken car with a new one, where the car is your body and the driver is you—not a big deal. Also, no one will force you to take a body—there are both physical and non-physical beings in the KHAA, depending on what you want to experience at a given moment. Even if you are non-physical, you can project a temporary “physical” body by rearranging your fires (shapeshifting) at will and vibrate on a level where physical beings can see you and interact with you. This is what shapeshifting is.

We do not know the main intention of the Queen. We do know that we agreed to participate in an experiment in which we were placed in a harsh physical environment, with all our creative abilities, to see if we could use the effect or consequences of our own creations, knowingly and unknowingly, to grow in compassion and harmony. Could beings learn to create in a beneficial way if this was done? The experiment was hijacked, but it is still ongoing. So, we still have choices here as to how we want to achieve this. Once we leave here, we will have opportunities and potentials that we cannot imagine or relate to as humans. Yes, we expect that we will be able to experience whatever we want to experience. We are tired and weary after being trapped here, so we can all relate to wanting a “rest” and “peace”. Certainly, that will be allowed.

QUESTION 11: In the Michael Newton Books it says that there IS a plan [behind] why we are in the life and body we are currently in, and that it is NO coincidence. He even lists in his Experiments, that we choose life and body by ourselves, so we can work more on some situations we haven't mastered yet and get new "skills" and chosen experiences, like which partner we meet, and so on. Destiny instead of coincidence. I don't believe in coincidence at all, which makes it hard to believe that there is no plan behind every reincarnation we have/chose? I think this even makes sense, cause Enki himself wants us to grow spiritually, and specifically chose reincarnations to help with this. So, I think the life by choice makes sense and that Michael Newton has not lied to us. Do you really think that we have no free will of what life we choose to live before we reincarnate and that all that happens from the beginning of birth is just a coincidence without a plan? Sounds very chaotic and harsh, which is very unusual for the Universe in my eyes, somehow unspiritual...

ANSWER: Michael Newton didn't lie—what his subjects experienced were true for them. However, who is to say that these BLA memories are not implanted? This is easily done. The AIF has access to all our memories, which are all stored, so they can implant narratives into the soul, who thinks it's true. All these realms Newton's subjects are talking about are just thought forms. If you go out of body and visit these realms, they are there. We created them with our beliefs, and you can even interact with them. This might seem farfetched, but it's just because we are limited in our 3D thinking—it requires a new way of thinking in order to grasp what is outside our daily life reality framework.

We still have the opportunity to "evolve" within the immediate recycling system. We are carrying our previous experiences with us into whatever body we're shot down into and can continue expanding from there. The big problem with this method is that it takes so much longer to expand our consciousness than it would otherwise. But this is a Matrix of polarity and duality. Therefore, both En.ki's and Marduk's interests are taken into consideration in the recycling process. We still can evolve, which is En.ki's wish, but it will become much harder, which is Marduk's wish, so he has the chance to manipulate us into accepting his agenda, as well. There is some mutual agreement in all this between the two parties, as it seems. This makes it very challenging for us. Everything in the Universe is about experience—it's all "spiritual," whether we perceive it as evil or good. The Divine does not distinguish between the two. It's up to us and our choices what experiences we're going to have, and this includes the AIF.

QUESTION 12: My question is, CERN has recently shut down LHC, what could be the reason and what benefits will it have, and how is this LHC impacting our reality? What is the future of it?

ANSWER: It's probably shut down because they have accomplished something they were aiming for, or they failed to do so. We would suggest it's probably the former. The reason for CERN has been manifold—it's not just one agenda. For sure, they are opening portals between densities; probably to both let beings in and for us to get out. Perhaps it makes it easier for us to move between densities and timelines. After all, both En.ki and Marduk want us to change our vibrations to fit their agendas. An idea is that this might be the way to do it. Also, we have all heard about the Mandela effect; that has to do with timelines. It's either an undesired bleed-through side effect from their experiments, or it's a part of the plan to merge some timelines to gain more control over us, who knows? We also brought up in one of our videos the 3-year time-loop we seem to be trapped in. This could also have to do with CERN. Maybe we are not yet ready for what they have planned for us, and they put us in this loop to give us time to catch up.

QUESTION 13: Is it possible to exit the matrix when we are asleep or is it only possible to enter the Khaa when we die?

Do we take 3d memories with us? Apart from wanting to leave the matrix, what are other requirements?

ANSWER: We have still not seen any indicators of someone exiting the Matrix during sleep. So long as we are connected to our 3D bodies, it sure seems like we are restricted to stay within the Matrix. Yes, we take the 3D memories with us when exiting. Requirements for leaving the Matrix are to be able to stay focused during the exit process, get rid of any and all attachments from this world, being 100% motivated to leave, and to get rid of the fear of the unknown, or there's a chance we will go through the tunnel because it seems safer, although it is not.

QUESTION 14: I saw you comment that the fifth planet Tiamat was the size of Jupiter and that Tiamat now became the asteroid belt and Earth. But according to astronomers, if you put all the matter of the asteroid belt together, you will have a sphere only 4 percent larger than the moon. And even if you add the total volume of Earth and the asteroid belt together, it won't even be near the same size as Jupiter. So, my question is: how did you conclude that Tiamat was approximately the same size as Jupiter? I am just curious because I do believe that there was a planet called Maldek or Tiamat and that it was destroyed by the AIF.

ANSWER: Yes, there was such a planet and it was destroyed. It's even told in the Eluma Elish, the first tablet. I don't know if it was exactly the size of Jupiter—it was a measure I chose so people could envision that the planet was big in comparison to Earth. There are many indicators that the planet was much bigger than the Moon and the Earth. Earth is just a splinter of Tiamaat, and we have gigantic petrification still existing on Earth. These petrified beings and objects could not have existed on a small planet. The relative size of Tiamaat also came from anonymous sources not from our Matrix. Another thing to take into consideration, as well, is that what we see in telescopes, etc., is En.ki's copy of the original solar system. He could shape and form things after his liking. Not everything here is in ratio. The destruction of Tiamaat happened in the KHAA.
