

Video 12: Narcissism on a Cosmic Scale Part 3 (Transcript)

by Wes Penre and Ariel Glad, May 28, 2018

This is the third and last video in the 3 part series, "Narcissism on a Cosmic Scale."

We humans were already fragmented before Enki's new idea to send narcissists to Earth was implemented, and consequently, fragmented souls, when their bodies died, arrived fragmented in the "Between Lives Area" (the B.L.A.). Previously, the A.I.F. seems to have stripped us off the fragmented parts in the B.L.A. to "feed the System," as Brett Stuart, remote viewer, puts it. They kept this trap alive with our human soul energy, using our wounded parts. Now, with this new idea, part of our fragments were gathered in some kind of "storage," and A.I.F. affiliated B.L.A. workers took random fragments and patched them together to create a complete soul, consisting of only emotionally wounded parts from many different souls. These new kind of souls were then shot into bodies here on Earth, and these humans became full-blown narcissists.

This literally means that there is no genuine soul in a full-blown narcissist—only a number of wounded fragments that are patched together. Thus, no one is "in charge" in a human body that inhabits such a soul. Therefore, a narcissist doesn't act out of freewill, but instead reacts in a stimulus-response manner to his environment. He or she thinks in the same way we think when we are acting on one of our triggers. When faced with life situations, the narcissist reacts by pulling up a certain wound fragment from his or her subconscious mind and starts acting out from that wound, instead of acting from the genuine soul level that is non-existent in a narcissist. This is why a narcissist can leave any environment and easily adjust to a new life situation by pulling up another fragment he or she can use. Then, if the narcissist returns to the previous environment, after let's say ten years, he or she can immediately pick up from where he or she left off as if no time has passed.

However, because the energy, emitting from a narcissist's soul fragments, is still soul energy with soul properties, survival, which is our basic instinct, is what drives a narcissist, and he or she can't survive alone, but must draw energy from people in the environment. A narcissist, according to Tom Montalk at Montalk.net, can only operate from the three lower survival chakras. Thus, so-called "spiritual narcissists" are not spiritual at all; they can only learn and imitate what others already have concluded. Then, they can twist things around to their own advantage, in order to trap more spiritually inclined humans. Thus, it looks like these narcissists are spiritual beings, but they are genuinely not.

Regular humans connect to the Central Fire through their upper chakras, so they need us to be conscious enough to be able to draw new fire from there. However, constant manipulation and ignorance draw us deeper into the abyss, and more and more people become disconnected from their upper chakras when more and more attending to technology. The Overlords have a difficult time finding a balance in all this because they have a bigger agenda, which will be addressed soon. Because they are desperate, they need to act quickly; they are running out of time.

What happens when a narcissist dies? Because there is no genuine soul, they go back into storage and used once again, being patched together from different soul fragments and sent back. There is no hope for a narcissist to graduate and leave this trap. They have no Oversoul—not even a genuine soul to begin with.

The idea Enki came up with suits the A.I.F. perfectly and has solved their problem of not getting enough energy supply through us. Today, there is probably at least one narcissist within every extended family, and everybody in the family becomes affected. There are of course exceptions to this, but our point is that it's much more common than not to be associated with a narcissist in the immediate vicinity. This has become a major problem and has caused a lot of trauma in the human soul group because it affects nearly everybody in a greater or lesser degree.

As a bonus, the idea of creating narcissists out of our own soul energy also benefits the A.I.F. in another way; the narcissists become our "mirrors." Because they are created from our own wounds, which are fairly similar in most humans, we see ourselves in the narcissists, and we get triggered. If we didn't have similar wounds inside as those of the narcissists, we would not be affected by their behavior; we would immediately recognize their manners as odd and unfriendly, and we would not want to have anything to do with them. It's our similarities, not the differences that keep us attracted to narcissists. Once we've healed from our narcissistic wounds and managed to reintegrate the subconscious wounds with the conscious mind, we will not attract narcissists into our lives because we are no longer energetically drawn to them and them to us.

This creates a situation that both we humans and the A.I.F. can gain from. By creating narcissists so they become our mirrors, the A.I.F. Overlords can feed off of us, but we can also use the narcissists to get in touch with our own wounds and reintegrate them when we get triggered. So, paradoxically, the narcissists can both hurt us and heal us, depending on how we look at it. The bottom line is that the A.I.F. now, in a roundabout way, can say that they give us a chance to advance by getting our wounds surface and healed.

We discussed earlier that Enki is considered redeemable but Marduk is not. This appears to be correct, and therefore, Enki is not a full-blown narcissist, while Marduk is. Thus, the question arises; how did Marduk become a full-blown narcissist/psychopath? Was he actually born the natural way from the interaction between his parents, or was he patched together to fill a certain function as well? Regardless, he was put in charge of Planet Earth thousands of years ago with a purpose to spread the narcissistic agenda of the gods, and he's done a good job so far.

Now ponder this: we've mentioned that the A.I.F. uses our unhealed soul fragments after death to "feed the System," but what happens with the rest of the soul that is still intact? This part of the soul, which we consider being the conscious part of us, will be sent back to a new incarnation as an intact, whole soul, without fragments. This is so that we can get a “new start” each lifetime, before we become traumatized again by our caregivers and our environment. However, because we’re robbed of parts of our soul energy—the fragmented parts—we have less and less energy to start out with each lifetime, and we get more easily depleted. Souls that are more depleted than others stand a greater chance to develop narcissistic traits than those with more soul energy. The latter become the codependents, who still can go inside and escape from the 3D trauma by building their own fantasy world within. The former have less of this ability and are left to face their abuse more heads-on and are therefore more likely to be more narcissistic throughout their lifetime.

This system worked fairly well for the A.I.F. for some time, but they have shot themselves in the foot because people are getting more and more depleted of energy, and it’s becoming more difficult to feed from us in the quantity they need. A temporary solution to this has been to lure in more souls from outside the system and let the population grow. This is not the only reason for the population increase, but it is probably one of them. But however they look at it, the Overlords are getting desperate to usher in the Singularity, so they can get out of here by using us as a combined force against Orion. Their plan is to get us all on the same page and use the Queen’s own energy, which is us, against Her. By turning us against Her, they hope to be able to ride us as their avatars and invade Orion. For this, they don’t need seven to ten billion people; they can only handle a fraction of that, so therefore, we actually see an agenda to now reduce the population.

An attempt to terminate this Experiment was made thousands of years ago when Khan Enlil had enough of Enki’s non-compliance and it was decided to wipe out the Experiment with droughts and eventually, a Flood. However, Enki managed to save his Experiment by tricking the Orions, and after the Flood, he was able to start all over again. Thus, the Experiment continued. On a higher metaphysical level, this also indicates that the Queen’s integration process needs to continue.

Because of the shape humankind is in, many star races don’t want humans to come to the KHAA, and many are addressing their concern, considering us being in cahoots with the A.I.F., although unwittingly. They don't want to bring our warlike tendencies into the rest of the Universe. At this point, and with this and other things in mind, the Queen has decided to let the Experiment continue, hoping we will eventually graduate. If not, humankind will go down with the A.I.F.. Individual souls, who manage to graduate, will be welcome in Orion.

As a human soul group, we only have two alternatives; we either graduate or we go down with the Overlords, forced to sucking each other out in order to survive, until there is no energy left to feed from. At that point, the soul will disintegrate and become one with the Universe again. This energy will be used as "payback" for the energy being drawn into this contained system out of the buffer from the Central Fire, and used only here, with no benefit to the rest of the Universe.
