Hello, I'm Johnny Cash...Oops, sorry, let's start all over: Hello, I'm Wes Penre. Before we begin, we want to inform our viewers that we will now start to include captions in all our videos. They will contain the same text as in the transcript I'm reading from. If you want the captions on, just click the "CC" icon in the lower right corner of this video. Little do we know about the timeline we're supposed to operate on. Linear time is something that seems to be quite unique to En.ki's Patrix. Out in the KHAA, they don't measure time like we do here because unless we're believed otherwise, the Universe is fluid, and so is time.

The aberration of time starts already at home when we're little kids; we are taught by our parents and people around us how time should be counted, but it's when we start our school education that it gets really flawed because that's when we learn about history and what has allegedly happened in the past; but more importantly, we are taught when it happened. This is when it gets really convoluted and messed up.

Interesting is that some mainstream scientists and mathematicians have now come out in the open and pointed out that what we've learned about our timeline is not accurate. One such rogue scientist is Anatoly Fomenko. For example, he can prove mathematically and from his own research that the Pompei eruption happened about thousand years more recently than we've been taught.

With this in mind, let's take a look at the timeline when it comes to the Alien Invasion, when Tiamaat was destroyed and En.ki and the Overlords took over and reconstructed Tiamaat into becoming what we now know as EArth (EA's/En.ki's Patrix). Most people, including Ariel and I, have thought that the Invasion happened between half a million years ago up to several million years ago. According to the Wes Penre Papers (WPP), the approximate time when it happened was 500,000 years ago. The reference that was used came from Barbara Marciniak's "Pleiadians," but other researchers and channeled entities give us approximately the same time frame. It's not that we trust channeled material in general, but to their defense, we know that for them, who are not living in our material world, it's very difficult to estimate time; particularly if something happened long ago.

We now have reasons to believe that this time frame is wrong—way wrong! The more we research the ancient texts and continue putting things together, we notice that it doesn't make sense that it happened so long ago. Instead, we would suggest that the destruction of Tiamat happened maybe a few tens of thousands of years ago, rather than hundreds of thousands of years ago, or even millions.

In other words, folks; we may not have been in this Construct as long as we think!

Most researchers believe that the Flood—the Deluge—happened 9,500-11,500 years ago, and this could be a relatively good time frame; we would suggest it was more like 11,500 years ago, but we could be wrong. Either way, we would say that was about the time when the Grid was set up. Before that time, there was no Grid around the planet; only the Firmament. I'll explain, but first we need to go farther back in time:

If we read the ancient texts, whether it's the Enuma Elish, the Sumerian tablets, the Vedas, the Edda, the Mesoamerican records, or whatever it could be, the storyline is more or less the same; the gods were walking among us in the old days. If we look at the Sumerian texts, for example, they tell us that Prince En.lil, aka Ninurta, and En.ki, together with the other gods and goddesses, were walking around on the planet at the same time. Of course, the "names" in the old texts are only titles, not names, but if we put things in context and go back in time, it definitely looks like that Prince Ninurta and En.ki were simultaneously mingling with us, although that changed at a later time, when Ninurta's title was taken over by the Overlords. In addition, the ancient Egypt, going way past the known Dynasties, was matriarchal in nature, and they attended to a Mother Goddess, not a patriarchal regime. Egypt, after the Flood, however, is another story, entirely, and we'll get to that in a minute.

The Emerald Tablets of Thoth go back around 36,000-38,000 years, according to some researchers. Whether this is true or not is uncertain, and we personally think they are maybe 10-15,000 years younger than that. What I'm getting at here is that the older Egypt did not happen on Earth but on Tiamaat! That was the time when En.ki and En.lil/Ninurta worked together, and old records indicates that. They only worked together on Tiamaat—not on Earth. This means that the oldest stories in the ancient texts describe the time when we were the Namlu'u on Tiamaat! It's a description of the early Atlantis and Lemuria, which was the actual Golden Age.

Then the Invasion happen, which we've discussed many times before; Tiamaat was destroyed, and Prince Ninurta, the Vulcans, and some human souls managed to escape via the Saturn stargate and went back to Orion, while most humans were trapped here, together with some Vulcans and Orion MIKH MAKH defense troops. En.ki then took pieces of Tiamaat and constructed the Earth to continue the Experiment with the human soul group, but on his terms.

Once the Earth was populated, En.ki, as Poseidon/Neptune (the Water god), continued where we left off before the Invasion; in other words, he tried to recreate his own Golden Age here on Earth with him as the God of All, and thus tried to replace the Mother Goddess as the Creator of the Universe. However, it took time to convince people to make this paradigm shift, as we shall see.

The time after the Invasion is what we usually refer to as Atlantis; although, if we consider what we've discussed above, it's not entirely true. Also, the word "Atlantis" gives it away, in a sense, because Tiamaat was the original water world.

When the old texts become more detailed, and the Egypt that was set up on Earth is being discussed, we get into the time period when Ptah/En.ki became the first ruler of Egypt, followed by Thoth, later replaced by Marduk, whom eventually, after the "Pyramid War," became known as Amun-Ra, "the Hidden Sun god.” It was probably around that time Thoth was gathering his followers and taught them what is now in the Emerald Tablets of Thoth. If the research of others is correct, this would have been around 38-40,000 years ago, but I believe it’s more recent.

Successively, En.ki worked on converting humanity into a patriarchal cosmogony and took charge as Poseidon/Neptune, the God of the Waters, and ruled Atlantis as the Main Deity. However, the matriarchal movement still lived on among many civilizations—this was before the Grid was set up, and the human soul group still had some memories from their old home on Tiamat. Also, they were generally more connected with the KHAA than we are now.

En.ki, as a geneticist, continued his experiments with genetics, crossbred a lot of different species, and got the most horrific results, which resulted in complete chaos on Earth. When he noticed that his creations were flawed and of no use, he just abandoned them and set them free to run amok among the rest of the Earth inhabitants. He also started introducing advanced Orion technology to the human scientists of Atlantis, perhaps in a first attempt to create a Singularity. This was recognized in Orion, however, and Khan En.lil, En.ki’s and Ninurta’s stepfather (by some erroneously associated with the Orion term “Anu,” which actually just means, “Heaven, the Orion Empire”) instigated the Flood to end this Experiment, although En.ki managed to “save” it by going behind everybody’s back.

When En.ki once again reconstructed the Earth, he knew he was playing with fire (no pun intended), so he set up the Grid for more than one reason. He needed the new homo sapiens sapiens (the modern man) to obey only to Him as the God of All, so he used Orion technology to quarantine the Earth Construct by creating the Grid. He accumulated the human mass consciousness and contained it within the Grid. By doing so, he killed several birds with one stone. This quarantined the Experiment and prevented beings from outside the Construct from coming in, but it also prevented those within the Construct to leave. The Experiment became isolated. In addition, he “tilted” the planet and changed its vibration so that the Construct would be difficult to locate by those from the KHAA—he cloaked it! Also, if someone got the idea to terminate the Experiment again, by penetrating and destroying the Grid, they would shatter the human mass consciousness, as well, and chaos would result.

Now, En.ki had more or less full control over the human soul group. We were isolated from our Higher Self, which is the Queen of Orion, who split Her own Spirit to become in charge over the souls who originally participated in the Human Experiment on Tiamaat—we are those Spirit splinters. We are still spirited, but we have, to a large degree, lost our connection with our “Mother,” the Queen. The Saturn stargate, which had always been the portal, leading directly into the Orion Empire, had been closed since the Invasion and heavily guarded by En.ki’s “Council of Nine,” mentioned in the RA Material and in the Emerald Tablets of Thoth.

Not until recently, there has been holes in the Grid, created by an overall awakening consciousness on Earth, but also because of recent battles that have been fought within our solar system, in which advanced weapons subsequently punched some holes in the Grid. It’s now that we have a great chance in a million to exit the Patrix, without having to go through the Saturn stargate, which is still closed and guarded. The Overlords’ powers have considerably weakened since the Flood, after which the Overlords were stripped off their creative energies by the Orions. Since then, the Overlords have had to feed off our human energy in order to survive—just like vampires in “fiction” books and movies need to drink human blood.

After the Overlords had been stripped off their creative powers, they realized that they had shot themselves in the foot. We humans were trapped in illusions, false beliefs, and were heavily manipulated, and we no longer drew our energy from the Central Fire but instead, we have since then just recycled into the System what we already have within us in form of fire. Even spirited humans started feeding off each other, unwittingly so, in order to retain our energy, and we still do. It became a dwindling spiral, which has weakened both humanity and the gods. Therefore, the quarantine/bubble that surrounds the solar system, previously keeping us double-trapped within the Earth Construct and the solar system, is not strong enough to hold the human Spirit/soul here anymore, in case we decide to leave.

This is the reason why the Overlords are working overtime to usher in the Singularity! The Grid is becoming useless, so they need a new Grid, which is the AI Cloud the Singularitists are talking about. This Cloud will be an even stronger barrier than the Grid ever was, and with the human souls trapped within “immortal” bodies, built with nanotechnology, it’s almost impossible to escape. This plan will be the Overlords’ last stand. After this is accomplished, we can imagine that an attack on Orion will follow in quick succession, before all soul energy runs out within the Construct.

Before we end this video, let’s step back a little bit in time again. Before the Flood, we might consider the Experiment still being a Matrix (a matriarchal construct), even though the Overlords had taken over. Many humans were still aware that the Universe is feminine in nature. However, after the Flood, when the Grid was put up, and we became isolated from the KHAA, En.ki saw his chance to convert humanity into a patriarchal society, where he became the Ultimate God; in his universe, he became the male God, whom we know as YeHoVaH (YHVH). The first patriarch was Abraham, and it was then the Matrix became the Patrix—the male-dominated Construct. Although there are still people out there, who, in their subconscious, remember that the Universe is feminine, they are now very few (but increasing in numbers again). In the Dark Ages, so-called “witches;” many of them matriarchs, were burned at the stake by the male-dominated Catholic Church, with God’s (En.ki’s) blessing.

Now, when we have suggested that the Invasion happened in more recent time, how do we explain all the artifacts that have been found, which seem to “prove” to be millions and perhaps billions of years old? Well, first of all, the method used to establish the age of an artifact is usually so-called “carbon dating.” Today, there are scientists and archaeologists, who are objecting and say that this method is inaccurate when it comes to dating, and if they are correct, we can hardly trust any dating that has been done so far.

Some people have asked us about the dinosaurs, for example, who supposedly lived here on Earth hundreds of millions of years ago. Isn’t that correct, then? We would say no. The dinosaurs never existed on Earth—they existed on Tiamaat, and they lived side by side with humans, as mentioned in the WPP, and they looked nothing like we’ve been told. Yes, they were huge, like everything else on Tiamaat, but they never existed within this Construct. When Tiamaat blew to pieces, almost everything became immediately petrified, and some remnants of these reptiles can be found in petrified form. There were some petrified beings, flora, and fauna that came with the building blocks En.ki took from Tiamaat, and they can still be seen here on Earth for those who have eyes to see, but these giant structures and creatures never existed on Earth. Others have pointed out that if this is true, how come they have found dinosaur bones, which are not petrified?

Some researchers suggest that they never have found any bones. People think that when they go to museums, looking at enormous Tyrannosaurus Rex's and Brontosaurus, they look at real skeletons when they are just reconstructions. If we research this even deeper, we notice that they have never found a complete skeleton of a dinosaur. At times, we're sure they have found petrification of let's say what looks like a huge reptilian leg or a big tooth. Out of that leg alone, they have built an imaginary dinosaur that only exists in the artist's/reconstructor's mind. It's all a lie, folks.

Last, we want to mention the Garden of Eden and Nibiru because some of you might wonder about that. The original Garden of Eden was Nibiru, which was the Queen's "spaceship," as mentioned in the Wes Penre Papers (WPP). I discussed Nibiru and the Garden of Eden quite extensively with one of my anonymous sources, and the following came out of these discussions:

Nibiru and Tiamaat are one and the same. The Garden of Eden was the original Experiment on Tiamaat, and the Garden of Eden that the Bible and other texts are discussing is the creation of homo sapiens, after this Construct was set up. Sitchin and others have thereafter confused the story by telling us that Nibiru is the Overlords' planet of origin, which travels between Sirius and our solar system in a 3,600-year orbit. This is disinformation. Nowhere in the Sumerian texts is this mentioned. This doesn't nullify the fact that the Sirians and the rest of the Overlords travel in hollowed-out asteroids, which they do, and that they could use a celestial body to impact the Earth, but it has nothing to do with Nibiru.

I am certainly not an expert in the Orion language, but the following is close to what the word Nibiru originates from: In the Orion/Aryan language, it would be spelled similarly to this: NI.B.IRU. N or NI (short for NIN) always denotes the feminine, where N also means Heaven, as in “feminine heaven.” B and V are interchangeable and means “container.” IRU can have different meanings, and sometimes means “at the side of.” If we spell it IR.U., the U denotes one of a kind (singular), while IM denotes plural—thus, EloHIM, plural. These words supposedly have Hebrew origins, but if we go further back, Hebrew is an offshoot of the Orion language.
