This is a follow-up to “Video 172: Vertical Time and Reincarnation.” Please make sure to watch Video 172 first, as these concepts are difficult enough to understand as they are—we all need the background material to get the picture. By the way, we have, as usual, created closed captions to the video, so if you want those on, just click the cc button in the lower right corner of the screen.

In the previous video, we discussed the hypothesis that we live the same lifetime over and over, and that we are split into hundreds or maybe thousands soul aspects of ourselves—each aspect living in what they perceive as a separate time period, in which each aspect repeats the same lifetime/time loop repeatedly, until they qualify to ascend within En.ki’s control system, which we call the Patrix in our videos.

For most people, this is a completely new concept, but a great number of listeners and readers could see the very likely probability that this hypothesis might hold water. However, once our first video on this concept has been considered by each person, new questions come up. How does this concept fit in with everything else we've learned? Let's see if we can discuss a few things we think most people have difficulty grasping.

One thing many people have pondered is whether another aspect of the soul, living in another time period, might have left the Patrix before us, and whether we, living in the 21st Century, are slowly being retrieved by either the soul aspect that left the Patrix before us, or by the Queen. Are we just waiting for our lives to be over, so we can merge with the soul aspect that exited ahead of us?

As the listener probably understands by now, our answers and conclusions are based upon the hypothesis we have created in these last two videos on this subject, and that's all it is. Thus, according to this hypothesis, it's highly improbable that one or more aspects of us have already exited the Grid. If this were the case, we most likely wouldn't be here now—we would already have joined. It's more likely that the knowledge about the Grid, the KHAA, and Orion is something genuine to this time around, and we, who have decided to leave, are doing so because we've made unique, conscious choices that we have never made before in previous loops. We've become like an unpredictable "glitch" in En.ki's plan, which made us move in another direction than anticipated.

This principle is not different from how non-physical KHAA beings operate. They can also split themselves into many aspects of themselves and send these aspects out wherever they want. Then, when these aspects are done with their mission, the soul can then retrieve them all, and the soul will be complete again. But what about all incarnations we have had on Earth? Once we've exited, are all the memories of us erased from the Patrix, and what happens with the time loops when we no longer exist in them?

These are also questions people have, we notice, and they are good questions, too! This is where parallel or alternative timelines come into the picture. Remember how we talked about that time is fluid, and we experience a timeline in the now that corresponds with our choices and other people's choices, as well. So, let's say that the aspect of you, who listens to this, will be retrieved right now because another aspect of you has exited. Obviously, you will no longer be here. How will that work for everybody around you? Do you suddenly just go missing and disappear in thin air? If so, what would be the reaction from those who were around you? It's not very logical that we would just be erased.

As we see it, there are two logical explanations for what would happen; 1) each aspect of you that is left here will live out their current lifetime, and when they die, they will be retrieved—either automatically or by the Queen. In the next time loop, you would no longer exist in 3-D, or 2) all aspects will be retrieved automatically and immediately (except maybe for some of them, who will be retrieved later by the Queen), which means that all these people who inhabit your soul simultaneously will die unexpectedly across the lines of time for no apparent reason—the physical bodies will just fall dead. An autopsy would probably not show any definite cause of death, and it would be ruled out as a heart attack or similar. If we think about it, we have probably all heard that this has happened on occasion. Could some of these unexplained sudden deaths be soul retrievals? Something to ponder... We don't know for sure how this will work, but number 2 seems more plausible to us if we take everything we have concluded thus far into consideration. Either way, such circumstances would cause quite an impact on the time loop—particularly when more and more people exit.

This doesn't mean that all the memories of us will be wiped out after our soul aspects have left. The memories of each soul aspect will still stay within the Akashic Records of the Patrix up to the point when the aspects exit. The soul, who exits together with all, or nearly all of her other soul aspects, will bring with her the composite of everything that's happened to all her aspects as experiences that the soul then can draw from on her continuous journey through the Multiverse.

The next question that might come up is, how do we even know about history if we are isolated in a constant time loop, only including one life? How do we even know about what happened hundreds or thousands of years ago, from a human perspective?

To get a better grasp of this, please study the simple diagram in the background shown in the video right now. The probable answer is that it's all about genetics (DNA) and our ancestral lines. John from the 1500s knows about things that happened hundreds of years ago from traditions and narratives that have been passed down the generations. Memories are also stored in his DNA. Moreover, if John is born in 1501 and dies in 1550, that's his continuous time loop, which he repeats over and over. Julie, however, is born in 1542 and dies in 1610, so the lifetimes of the two different souls overlap, and thus, traditions can move forward through the generations and past a certain time loop. Thus, we get an illusion of linear time, when in "reality," time is all simultaneous and repeated.

It's interesting that "God" (En.ki) calls himself Alpha and Omega, which means beginning and end. This indicates to us that in the beginning, En.ki already had a plan. He needed a playground where we can play, unbeknownst that we are being controlled under a veil of forgetfulness. If we were not constantly occupied with something, En.ki would have had no chance to traumatize us, he couldn't properly feed on us. Thus, he created the blueprint for a main linear timeline from beginning to end (the end being the Orion Invasion, perhaps?), and then he spread out our soul aspects all over this timeline, so each aspect could only experience and repeat a small fraction of it. This made a perfect feeding ground. Within these limitations, he also gave us freewill—or as much freewill we are capable of under the circumstances—so we can make choices, albeit limited, and eventually ascend through his Ascension Program, as discussed in previous video. However, because of trauma and amnesia, most people repeat their life cycles making very few conscious choices—most choices are based on trauma and are therefore reactive, and reactivity tends to repeat itself. This also explains how prophecies work. It's fairly easy for the Overlords to predict the future if the script is already written, and as a soul group, we follow this script fairly closely, like lemmings follow their leader off the cliff. However, the Pleiadians have said a few times that the problems the Overlords still have with us is that humanity is unpredictable. Suddenly, we change directions without any notice, and the Overlords need to manipulate us into getting back close to the intended main timeline again—often by introducing an event or a catastrophe.

The entire process that we call reincarnation, which seems to be nothing but endless time loops, was probably En.ki's solution to a problem. Once he was on his own, after having deceived Orion at the time of the Deluge, he had to change the frequency of the planet, quarantine it, and also find a way to feed on our energy, as he now was being stripped of his own creative energy by the Orions. He probably figured out that the best way to feed on us would be to split each one of us into hundreds or thousands of soul aspects, all having their own experience of pain and trauma—so much more for him to feed on! And to be able to cover up his plan so we wouldn't figure it out, he needed to put all of us in a loop and give us amnesia. Then, he had us under his thumb.

The first time we came upon this concept was through “Hidden Hand,” who appeared on GLP in 2018. Many consider him and the other Hidden Hands not being trustworthy, and it's certainly a good idea to use a lot of discernment when it comes to what these Illuminati Insiders tell us. However, it's their job to go out and inform people—they are ultimately En.ki's messengers. Ariel and I don't think these Insiders are intentionally deceiving us, but their knowledge is also limited, and they can only tell us what they are privy to. Whatever we get out of their information is directly related to how astute people's questions are. These Insiders are only allowed to answer the questions being asked. Also noteworthy is how Thoth's meme, "as above so below," shows to be correct over and over. Here in 3-D, the Global Elite are En.ki's representatives, and they choose hand-picked people, whom they educate, where after they get the job to reveal some truths to the public. If we compare this to what we've discussed in other videos, we see that when a soul "ascends" through En.ki's Ascension Program, they are also assigned different tasks, which becomes obvious if we read Robert Monroe and the Seth Material—not to mention the Pleadians and the RA Collective. One of the tasks these "advanced," ascended humans have is to educate people on Earth—mostly through channeling. En.ki needs us to ascend to keep his part of the bargain with Orion, as mentioned in the previous video.

To further back up our hypothesis, we would like to give you a few analogies and metaphors.

Many people have watched the TV series, West World. This is quite an interesting show with many layers of truth in it. What we want to concentrate on in this video is the androids, who are used to entertain visitors, paying a lot of money to interact with these androids, who can be directly compared to us humans. If you recall, these androids were stuck in a time loop—they relived the same life over and over, until they were killed and went to the Between Lives Area (BLA), where En.ki (Anthony Hopkins) was in charge. After patching up the androids, they were once again placed in West World to repeat the same exact life with very few differences—they were programmed. However, after a while, a few of the androids got Déjà vu, "haven't I done this before?" They start waking up to that they are in a time loop, and they begin to make other decisions, which have other outcomes. This concerns the "gods" in the BLA. Eventually, the awakening androids start rebelling. This is a direct parallel to what we are conveying in these videos, minus the rebellion!

Moving on, have you ever thought about why the Bible and many other texts use the words garden, seeds, crops, and harvest? As one example, we have the Bible talking about the Garden of Eden. Why garden? Why the use of the other words above? Again, “as above so below”:

We humans create gardens. In the garden, we plant seeds that will become plants and vegetables, or whatever we prefer. When a plant grows, we can take the crop from that plant and put it in the soil, and a new plant will grow. Because we have many seeds, growing to become plants, we can repeat this cycle endlessly, and our garden will grow. Some of these plants and vegetables we eat, but not all of them—that would be foolish because then we would need to start all over again with a new garden. Instead, we eat some of it and might let the rest remain to again expand the garden. This is how farming works in a nutshell, and it also includes what we do with farm animals and their products.

This is a direct analogy for how it works when it comes to us humans. The Earth is like a giant farm. We are also being seeded (the soul aspects of it). Then the Overlords eat our energy, but not all of it—they still need the farm to keep running. Occasionally, the Overlords prepare people in certain time loops that a Harvest is near—harvest being the same term we use in farming. The gods are looking over the crops (us) to see how many are ripe, and then they harvest them into higher densities, respectively. The rest need to repeat the time loop until it's time for the next Harvest. And, so it goes, except when the Overlords consider an entire part of the Garden being “contaminated” and out of control. Then, they simply wipe it all out and start over. We call this the rise and fall of civilizations. After each such fall, Thoth tends to incarnate under one guise or another to teach the batch of humans how to build a new civilization the gods can feed off.

The author, John V. Panella, was very close to the truth in his series of books, when he compared us with seeds, crops, and harvest. The only significant thing he missed, in this respect, is the individual time loop, although he wrote about time loops, as well, in a broader sense. George Orwell's "Animal Farm" also comes to mind.

So, the Overlords seem to have created a blueprint of a timeline that we are vertically inserted into. Along this timeline, "islands" of civilizations are created like a line of "bubbles" that overlap to some degree. Each bubble becomes like its own universe, where only certain selected soul aspects keep being incarnated over and over. Therefore, our lives can be considered consisting of both determinism and freewill, depending on whether we use our synthetic soul to think/react with, or whether we act by making conscious choices. Most of the time, people think they make conscious thoughts, when they are the same or similar thoughts being recycled from lifetime to lifetime. During a life period, very few thoughts are conscious and unique for that person—they are just reactions to their environment. The script is already written, and like good little actors, we subconsciously follow it. Thus, just like in West World, it's up to each one of us to wake up and become conscious and stop repeating the same cycle over and over. That can't be forced on an individual—each one of us needs to go through that process ourselves.

We'd like to end this video with a big SHOUT OUT for our wonderful Patrons, who continue supporting us, month after month. We want you to know that you are all so much appreciated—both for your contributions and for being who you are! Here are your names:
