

Video 281: The Singularity Timeline Part 1

I intended to write about something else for this video. But after I started to investigate the new social media platform, “The Metaverse,” which will replace Facebook, and later all other social media, and eventually the entire Internet, I decided this needs to be addressed first, as a priority, because of its seriousness and the rapid progression toward the final Singularity. So, I will release a series of videos about the Singularity, the Metaverse and what we can expect will happen long-term. Of course, the further into the future we look, the more uncertain the details will be, but the overall idea of the Singularity and how it will play out can be fairly well foreseen, in my opinion.

I will probably post videos in this series once a week from now on, but please continue sending questions for the Q&As at wespenre2@gmail.com. After this series, I will post some Q&As after each other, so I am happy to get questions.

I want to start with an overview of the Singularity and where we're going. I strongly advise to also read the book I wrote about five years ago called, Synthetic Super-Intelligence and the Transmutation of Humankind—A Roadmap to the Singularity and Beyond. It can be found on Amazon. It's highly relevant and is also using mainstream sources to explain what is going on. With that said, let's dig into this.

I hear many people say that everything now progresses extremely rapidly, and one thing after another is being implemented; the latest being Facebook's Metaverse, which we shall cover in an upcoming video. However, we need to remember that anything that is released, supposedly being "new technology" has been in the making for decades, and some of it has been completed for quite a while, just waiting to be released.

Many people still think Bill Gates and Mark Zuckerberg were two brilliant teenagers who came up with fantastic technology that then became implemented and enhanced by real scientists, who egged these two geniuses on. Well, if you add some critical thinking to that, consider whether this is true, or if these two young men are just average front people being used, having no idea how to develop things like these. I'm pointing this out to show how we are being deceived. These former teenagers now have become major front players on the Singularity scene; the American dream, which so many people seem to relate to.

The same goes for the "great teenage inventor," Dr. Ray Kurzweil, Singularity "expert" and frontperson in the media and in Silicon Valley.

The Singularity is an old idea, well planned long before the Internet was employed. However, we could perhaps say that the Internet was the first major step toward the Singularity. The Elite understood that, in order to manipulate humankind, they need to do it incrementally. Humans are creatures of habit, and initially, the Elite introduced a relatively “primitive” technology, such as today’s computer technology, and we got used to this new way of living, where all information is created from our own input. Over time, and by adding social media to it, the Elite got a pretty good picture of the human mass consciousness, and where we are in our development. They can then release new technology when the human mass consciousness has decreased enough in vibration to be ready for the next step. So, in general, the human population is decreasing in consciousness.

At first, people were fascinated by the computer technology, being able to instantly connect with others via email, chat groups, and video programs all over the world; but over time, the Internet became mandatory in order for people to function in society. Everybody needed a computer, and to get a job, you needed to be computer literate. We became dependent on and addicted to technology. After that, to make sure everybody always had Internet access, cellphones and smartphones became mandatory. These days, you need the phones to get a job, order online, and sign up for services. There is little way around it if you want to be part of society. And all the time, in the background, we are giving our data and information about ourselves away because everything we do or say is monitored and stored in giant databases for future Singularity use. And we are willingly giving our personal information away.

Then it was time to take the Singularity agenda further, so they created a “virus.” I say virus within quote marks, and I say “they” created it because I am quite convinced this is not a virus, but a bioweapon, long being planned to be released on the public worldwide to justify global vaccination, which has absolutely nothing to do with saving us from a virus. But one thing justifies the other, and thus, the agenda can be driven forward, as we shall see.

The Elite has studied the human mind in depth for many decades, and they know how individuals operate, and they know how the mass consciousness, aka the human soul group, operates as a collective.

All the Elite needs to do is to use what they have learned against us to create the effects they want, and the most powerful tool they have is fear; particularly the fear of death, which most people have in common. Therefore, the illusion of a fatal virus is a perfect tool.

Because the virus, in my opinion, is a bioweapon, people did and do get sick, and some people die, but not at all in the numbers that are repeated in the media. I think it's designed to kill people with compromised immune systems—young and old—but not so much perfectly healthy people, who might only get moderate to severe flu symptoms. People with compromised immune system might not be able to go through the transmutation into a synthetic human; they will fall off the bandwagon over time, and the strongest survive.

From where the Elite sits, the deaths are justified to accomplish greater goals, i.e., the Singularity and beyond, and these deaths keep the rest of humanity on their toes, full of fear that they or their loved ones will die, too, and we have a population that is easily controlled, relying on treasonous “experts” to help them stay alive. Thus, people give all their power away to the same people who created the problem, and they conform to any new rules, and even work as a police force against those who do not conform, and they are doing so out of fear and even terror. So, we have a new division in this realm of duality. Once again, and now on a global scale, we work against each other instead of uniting, and we run the errands of those who want to control us, while they are laughing at us behind the curtains.

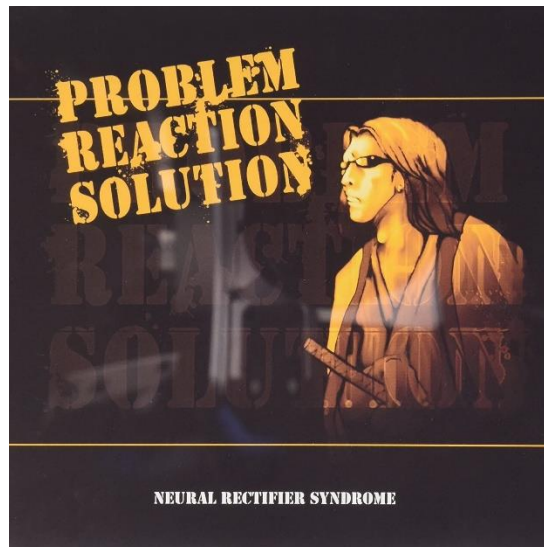

The purpose with the virus was never to kill us off; only to kill a few people to use as fear propaganda against us, and perhaps get rid of those who don't qualify for the “new normal.” If they wanted to terminate humankind, they could have done so with this bioweapon. It doesn't happen because they need us; at least a certain number of us to bring forth their agenda, which does not end with the Singularity, as I have emphasized in the Wes Penre Papers (WPP) and all throughout my research.

The next step was to isolate us, so they created the lockdowns, which from a scientific point of view will only deplete our immune systems even more. But I don't believe that was the point. They want us to get used to being at home and to work at home and to be isolated. First, they implement it by trauma (the lockdowns and inability to travel), and trauma creates triggers that then create subconscious patterns. Everything is being used to drive the cause forward. In addition, we are being told that the virus will probably never go away, and it will mutate. We will never go back to "normal," and they program us with repetition, calling our future the "new normal." So, what will this new future, the new normal, look like?

Well, as usual, those who come up with the problem (i.e., the Elite) create a reaction among people that “something needs to be done!” So, the same people who created the problem now will come up with a solution that drives their agenda forward; it won’t benefit us, although they give us the illusion that it does.

Next, they told us we need a global vaccine against the virus, or otherwise humanity will probably become extinct over time. This vaccine is developed in “no-time,” which worries even some doctors and scientists. Little do they know it was not developed in no-time; it was already done perhaps a decade ago or more. They just had to wait to start using it until the time was right, which is now.

So, they present this wonder vaccine against a virus that is not a virus, so the shots can’t protect us from a non-existing virus, and were never meant to. Still, most people are relieved and stand in line, without understanding the formula that is being used constantly by the Elite, problem-reaction-solution, as described above. Mr. Gates, the infamous philanthropist, emphasizes how important it is for each person on the planet to get vaccinated for the sake of the entire humanity, making those who don't want the shots the enemy of mankind, and the scapegoats for spreading the virus further. In fact, there are indications and evidence that those who get the vaccines actually spread the bioweapon, aka the virus, further, but it's being blamed on so-called anti-vaxxers. There are also studies showing that those who get the vaccines have a greater chance of getting this so-called virus than those who don't. And not only that; there are also bad side effects from the shots, such as blood clots, heart- and lung diseases, and death, to name a few. Still, people believe in these vaccines because they feel painted into a corner, and they want to go back to a relatively normal life, so even those who hear about the side effects hope it won't apply to them because not everybody gets these effects. However, it's like playing Russian roulette, for sure. And people have not seen the long-term effects of the vaccines yet.

To quote the famous researcher and former mainstream journalist, Jon Rappoport: “In the US alone, reported vaccine injuries have soared past 800,000... The well-known Harvard Pilgrim Healthcare study concluded that, in order to obtain a true number for such injuries, you would need to multiply the reported figure by 100.”

In the beginning, we were told we needed either one shot or two, and we could get a pass, so we can travel and more or less go back to a normal life (the new normal), where everybody is vaccinated. However, then we hear that a new, mutated strand of the virus is spreading, so we all need boosters. Again, people get terrified and stand in line to get these boosters. Then comes the next mutation, and the next, and the next... Now, we are told we probably will need boosters every 5-6 months to keep the virus in check. So, even those who have, let's say, had 5 boosters, but refuse to take the sixth one is considered unvaccinated and will be treated like someone who were not vaccinated in the first place and will be discarded by society, just like the basic anti-vaxxers, and restricted in the same way.

And their green passes will no longer be valid. And the media are doing all they can to demonize people who don't trust the vaccines, and thus create a hate relationship against those who don't take the vaxx, calling them irresponsible and disgusting. They don't want to have anything to do with those who are not vaccinated. The anti-vaxxers are considered stupid and of a lower class of humans; even by psychologists online, who have gone as far as calling those with real critical thinking, against the vaccine, clinical psychopaths. So, if you haven't taken the vaccine yet, you are a clinical psychopath, according to some faculty.

So, why does the Elite want the entire world population to take all these vaccines, including recurrent boosters for who knows how long? What is in the vaccines?
