

Video 282: The Singularity Timeline Part 2 [Homo Singularitus]

This is Part 2 in the series on the Singularity timeline, and in Part 1 we finished with asking the following questions: Why does the Elite want the entire world population to take all these vaccines, including recurrent boosters for who knows how long? What is in the vaccines?

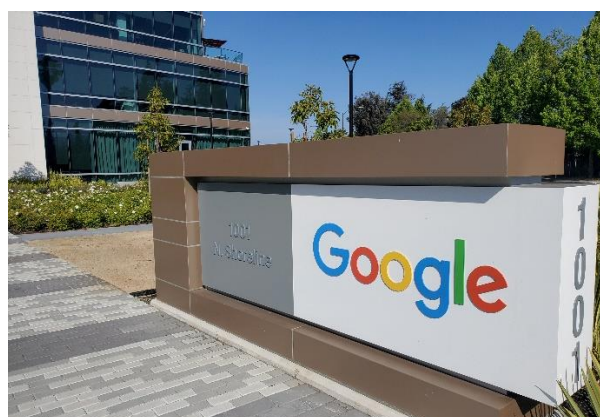

Well, it's definitely nanotechnology; that has already been established, even by scientists. I talked about nanobots years and years ago, and there is no doubt in my mind that the vaccines are teeming with nanotechnology so the Elite can create cyborgs. They want to transmute the biological cells by replacing them with stem cells which can then be transmuted into anything; in this case nano-cells, aka nanobots, which will replace our current biological blood cells. The nanobots are self-rejuvenating forever and ever, and they also reverse aging; the human body becomes an “immortal” machine; a synthetic human, run by A.I. We become a Borg society with a hive mind, just like in Star Trek. Because the soul comprises trillions of small fires, as discussed in the WPP, these fires attach to the human body via the trillions of cells, and if these cells become synthetic and “immortal,” the soul gets stuck. There is no more death, but also a much lesser chance to leave the body and this Construct as a whole, although I would add I don’t think it’s impossible.

The purpose is, according to my research, to shoot us full of nanotechnology that will change us from biological to synthetic humans, and we get the new Homo Singularitus as a result. It appears this, to a large degree, is going to be accomplished with these global vaccines. Thus, the global pandemic was necessary. They needed a global disaster in order to implement a global cyborg society through the “solution” to the pandemic, global vaccines. They would never have been able to implement something of this magnitude unless there was a global disaster foregoing it. This is why an orchestrated pandemic was the perfect tool, and you may see now that the vaccines have nothing to do with immunizing us against the virus, i.e., the bioweapon.

Of course, there is other kinds of nanotechnology in the vaccines, as well, mixed into the pot. That is obvious. They would be stupid if they did not take advantage of a situation where they can inject a global population. One of the ingredients will also, over time, make all of us infertile. Why do I say that? I explained this in the Singularity book, and it's not me saying this; it comes from the horse's mouth. This was promoted by Silicon Valley's Dr. Ray Kurzweil in his book, on this website, and in his lectures. He says that in the future, sex is not an option, and we will not be able to procreate because there is no need for it. We will become immortal bodies, and if we need more bodies, they will be constructed in laboratories. No more sex, perhaps no more romantic relationships, and certainly no more children.

This became obvious, as well, when Bill and Melinda Gates and their Foundation went to Africa and India, among other places with a poor population, and tested different kinds of vaccines with horrifying effects. Women and men became infertile, pregnant women had miscarriages, and others died from the vaccines. The projects were deemed successful, according to Bill Gates himself in different Internet interviews, and they left the crime scenes happy and pleased with the results. India was even in the process of suing the Foundation.

In conjunction with shooting us full of nanotechnology, our two-faced infamous philanthropist, EL-on Musk, is placing a large number of satellites into our atmosphere to which the human brain will connect when we are properly “nanobotted.” He talks about a brain implant we will need, but it might not even be necessary. The bots will probably connect us to the satellites, and we, as a human soul group, will be mentally connected to the infamous A.I. Cloud, aka Supercomputer we hear so much about. That will eventually transform the Internet to an Innet, i.e., we will then have the Internet inside our heads/brains, with our souls connected to that. And thus, we will literally have our heads in a cloud.

However, this is not miraculously going to happen. More steps are needed for humanity to adjust to this “new normal.” So, we now have the vaccines that they need to implement, and at the same time make things extremely difficult for people who don’t want the vaccine, so they, too, will give in, eventually, out of convenience. It’s a matter of who can hold their breath the longest. In the end, even the breath-holders will need to start breathing, when they become outcasts and separated from society. They will be the modern day “Jews” of Nazi Germany— isolated, despised, and abandoned by everybody who has conformed. And as mentioned, they will even be considered dangerous psychopaths. That has already started.

But let us ask ourselves the following question: why are vaccinated people so terrified of those who are not vaccinated? Aren’t vaccinated people supposed to have immunity and be able to move around freely in society? And if we humans have freewill, shouldn’t some of us have the option not to get vaccinated? According to the non-sensical science, we learn that the vaccines create immunity, so if some people prefer to take the risk of infecting each other with the COVID bioweapon rather than to get potential blood clots and heart attacks from the vaccines and become cyborgs, shouldn't that be accepted? Theoretically, if we, who are against vaccination, make each other sick, isn't that our problem, and something we take into consideration? Why are the vaccinated people and the authorities so concerned when they have such a magic vaccination program for those who want it? Why don't people who are vaccinated ask themselves this question, instead of conforming to a herd mentality and a pattern of illogical and non-critical thinking, thrown at them by the Media and other manipulating institutions? We are repeating history for the millionth time, listening to our own persecutors, whom we then call helpful and benevolent. Apparently, the ignorance is as bottomless as the Abyss itself.

A smaller group will probably leave the future Smart Cities and create their own communities outside the cities, where they can live closer to nature, as discussed in my Singularity book and "A Handbook for the New Era," both available on Amazon. I will also discuss Smart Cities in an upcoming video. However, although I don't want to sound pessimistic, I stumbled upon some information about ten years ago, indicating that companies, such as Monsanto, will eventually have monopoly on growing crops, etc. It will make it illegal to grow your own fruits and vegetables unless it's on their terms. And these crops will be infected with nanotechnology, and perhaps even vaccine. The criminals behind the Singularity will make it as difficult as possible for anti-vaxxers to survive on their own. And if you do some quick research, you will see that Monsanto has a history of destroying and cutting down the crops of local farmers who grow organically, threatening them, trying to force them to start growing genetically modified food, or the harassment will continue. Although local farmers have sued Monsanto many times, nothing comes out of it. It's like trying to defeat a terrible monster with your bare hand. This is a fact and strengthens the theory about monopoly. Monsanto is currently banned in many countries, but other solutions will be implemented by the Elite.

Now, they are already introducing the next step on their Singularity Agenda, calling it The Metaverse. It is in the starting process and will replace Facebook to begin with, but later spread to other social media as well, and eventually, it will replace the entire Internet.

So, what is the Metaverse?

It is a virtual reality (VR) Internet. You will get headgear, and when you put them on, you will be in a virtual reality that will become so real that you cannot distinguish between it and the reality we live in now. You can create whatever you want (at least at first, as a hook), and you can meet with your friends in what appears to be an as physical environment as this one. Everybody will have their own avatars, perhaps at least partly based on the face recognition programs smartphones and other devices are implementing these days. This will appear so exciting that people will get lost in it and addicted to it. You can sit in your chair all day and be in this VR environment. Then, in the evening, when it's time for bed, you return to this scary and depressing environment we call Earth life, and you can't wait to get back to VR, where you can become a creator god and create whatever you want.

You, who have followed my work, know we humans are spiritual beings and creator gods by nature. Because of the dense 3D reality that the Kenoma/Matrix consists of, it is difficult for us to be the creator gods we actually are, which means we shouldn't even need to use any technology to accomplish the same goal, and more. The Elite knows this and takes advantage of it by making us "creator gods" with help from technology when we are supposed to do it without. Humans become very enthusiastic about this new tech because they feel they are getting close to who they really are, whether they are aware of this. It triggers something very fundamental inside us, and that's how the Elite traps us. From a VR environment, they can then control the entire human mass consciousness simultaneously and individually, as needed.

However, the Facebook Metaverse is just a silly precursor for what is to come—it is an intermediary. In the beginning, it's going to appeal to gamers for the most part, i.e., the younger generation, conveniently, and people up to the age of 30 or so; in other words, those who grew up with computer games. It's being developed because they want the younger generation, to begin with, to get used to VR, just like we got used to the Internet in the past, but the older generation was not so keen when the Internet was first introduced. That changed out of necessity if nothing else. The next generation of Metaverse will be all-inclusive and for everybody.

In the meantime, vaccines, and other means, perhaps, are being implemented in the background to transmute us into cyborgs. Then one day we will likely be told that we have become immune to the virus (when our bodies have completely transmuted into machines), and we need no more boosters. I heard a scientist say that they expect that 80%+ of the world population will eventually be fully vaccinated, so I assume the 20% will be shunned non-vaxxers. Then it's a matter of 80% of what number of world population they are talking about. Today's population, or after the world population has been reduced?

Also, in the near future we will need no more headgear to participate in the Metaverse. We can throw them away, and we can also throw our computers away, and possibly even our phones, because now everything is connected to the Cloud, and we have access to everything inside our heads instead of a computer screen, and we are able to create new things in the VR world, while our synthetic bodies are kept alive in an environment that has also become synthetic. As Dr. Kurzweil so enthusiastically says, together with astrophysicist Michio Kaku, and others, and I paraphrase, "Everything will be A.I., based on nanobots and nanotechnology; even the stones, the forests, the animals—everything in our environment will be immortal and synthetic." And he adds, "With our immortal bodies, we will even be able to conquer space and become the crown of creation!" A very interesting statement! And that's an extremely important discussion for another video in this series.

The virus/social distancing/vaccination agenda has done something else to humanity, as well. Humans, as a collective soul group, are generally social in nature, and we generally connect with each other to feel good. Social distancing and all the non-logical and non-scientific restrictions that have been put on us have made many people depressed and disillusioned about their own future and those of their loved ones. This is evidently deliberately done to discourage us from living our lives the way we were naturally designed to do. But voila! Those who create the problems have the solutions at hand! And again, it's virtual reality, where everything is possible, and where we can be our happy selves again, connected to each other in the virtual world. We can even get our income from VR, which I also will get into. This is very cryptocurrency comes into play.

In the natural world, things are harsh and difficult, and there are constant threats to our survival and wellbeing. However, soon all that will be obsolete when we can connect within the Cloud and create what we want. We don't need to interact with the biological world, which of course will be transmuted, anyway.

So, why creating cyborg bodies and a synthetic world? Why not just gather the soul energy in a Cloud and call it good? Well, we are “children of nature;” i.e., we are both physical and non-physical beings, grounded in a physical world, whether it's this one or some other physical world outside the Kenoma/Matrix. Being anchored in a body is part of who we are and the way we operate and a part of our spiritual selves, so the Elite and their lofty overlords still need us to have bodies that they can be in control over, and that's when the cosmic part of this plan comes into the picture, which also will be discussed again in this series; something I also mentioned in the WPP.
